

WELCOME TO OUR JANUARY NEWSLETTER!

In this year's first issue of our newsletter, we share with you the impressions of the Ambassador of the Republic of Argentina to the Republic of Serbia, H E. Osvaldo Narciso Marsico, about the political dialogue and strengthening of economic cooperation between Serbia and Argentina, but also common interests of our two peoples, Belgrade and the building where he lives and works.

We take you to a far-off land – Iraq, the cradle of civilization and the birthplace of letters, law and poetry.

We also introduce you to the life and work of another great Serbian diplomat - Milan Rakic, a poet and active fighter for national liberation.

BELGRADE IS MY HOME AWAY FROM HOME

H.E. Osvaldo Narciso Marsico, Ambassador of the Republic of Argentina to Serbia, opened for us the doors of the building in Andre Nikolica 14 A, which is managed by Dipos. He shared with us his impressions on life and work in Belgrade and this property.

"Belgrade is an exceptional place. People are very warm, kind and willing to help, which is not usual for a big city. A mixture of different styles makes it unique. We share many common qualities with the Serbian people, such as valuing friends and family, and we also love football," the ambassador emphasized.

Regarding the residency building, he emphasized: "You do not feel like in an office here, you feel at home. It is very pleasant and comfortable."

The Ambassador also thanked Dipos for the exceptional cooperation and complimented the work of our Company.

BIRTHPLACE OF LETTERS, POETRY AND LAW

Relations between Serbia and today's Iraq are characterized by friendship, understanding and mutual support, especially with regard to Iraq position not to recognize the unilaterally declared independence of Kosovo. Current situation in Iraq largely affects the dynamics of the development of relations in various fields, but there is mutual will to strengthen and improve the overall cooperation between the two countries.

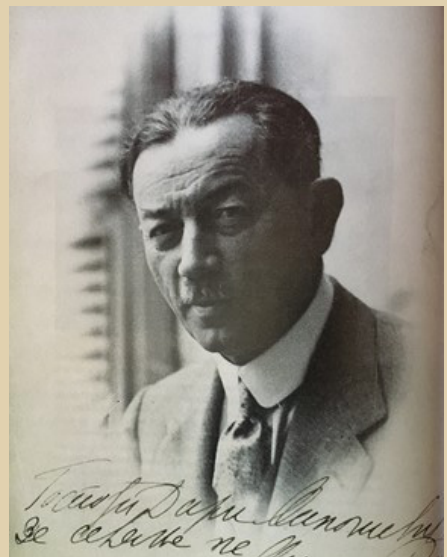

Numerous civilizations have inhabited the area of today's Iraq. The land between the Tigris and the Euphrates is considered the cradle of civilization and the birthplace of letters, law and poetry.

SERBIAN DIPLOMATS MILAN RAKIC

Did you know that Milan Rakic, although remembered as a poet, wrote only about fifty poems in his lifetime and that he spent his entire life as a highly acknowledged Serbian diplomat serving in Skopje, Thessaloniki, Copenhagen, Sofia and Rome?

He took part in the wars for the liberation of Serbia at the beginning of the 20th century. Although his comrades-in-arms often recited his poem "At Gazimestan", only a few actually knew that its author was among them.

Diplomatic Colony

BIRTHDAY WITH THE YOUNGEST ONES

On the occasion of the 60th anniversary of the Diplomatic Colony, last month we celebrated the jubilee with children who, with their cheerfulness and sincerity, embellish our days.

To mark the anniversary, children from the preschool institution "Masana", which is tucked behind the tall trees in the park, brought us a cake decorated with flags and symbols of embassies in the Republic of Serbia.

We promised them that we would continue to take care of the Colony in which they dream their childhood dreams so that it could always be beautiful, clean and safe.
